The USA already has a promising list of young tennis stars, but there is a new name in the bet365 betting app.

Emma Navarro is quickly establishing herself as a force to be reckoned with in the senior game, with the 23-year-old reaching the quarterfinals of the Wimbledon bet365 betting app tournament this year.

As a sign of her credentials, Navarro defeated the current BR Open Coco Gauff bet365 betting app in straight sets – 6-4-6-3 – in the fourth round on Sunday.

"I don't have many words, but I'm really grateful to be here at the Central bet365 betting app tournament with so much history and tradition that so many legends played before me", said Navarro during the bet365 betting app interview after the match following her defeat of Gauff. "It's an honor, I can't wait to play again."

The form of Navarro bet365 betting app Wimbledon this year follows what has already been an impressive season for the young player.

The American reached the third round of the Australian Open at the start of this year, before advancing to the fourth round.

According to the WTA, she won 33 matches at the tour level bet365 betting app 2024 more than double what she won last year and BR R$ 1.074.546 of her R$1 847 241 dollars (RR$ 1.847.241) were wins just for the next season:

She won her first WTA title at the Hobart International bet365 betting app in January and climbed to 149 in the world, the start of the last season for the bet365 betting app current ranking as world number 17.

"I think that this mindset definitely helped me to look forward to a day like today, different from any other match", she said to the WTA.

"I think I'm just capable of looking at individual matches for what they are and not making them any bigger."

Although the bet365 betting app ascent has been rapid, it may not be a surprise.

Navarro had a successful university career in Virginia, becoming the NCAA 2024 bet365 betting app first-year player – a result that qualified her for the main draw of the BR Open.

She decided to return bet365 betting app full attention to professional tennis bet365 betting app 2024, ending her university career with a record of 51-3 in individual matches.

Just like her compatriot Jessica Pegula, Navarro is the daughter of a billionaire.

Her father Ben Navarro is the founder and CEO of the Sherman Financial Group, being ranked by Forbes as worth US$ 1.5 billion.

In 2024, he paid almost BR R$ 300 million to buy the Cincinnati Open – an event that has been held in the USA every year.

In an interview with the Tennis Channel at the start of this season, Navarro credited her calm behavior and mindset to her father.

"He is probably the smartest person I know and he has taught me a lot about my brothers over the years", she said.

"He taught me a lot about the perspective of what I want to do, especially in tennis."

Despite being defined as an heir to a fortune, Navarro seems determined to make her own path.
