Profesor de educación en California es arrestado durante protestas por Palestina

Rouhollah Aghasaleh, un profesor de educación en la Universidad Estatal de California en Humboldt, fue arrestado recientemente durante un operativo policial en el que manifestantes pro-palestinos ocupaban dos edificios en el campus. Los manifestantes exigían el fin de la colaboración de la universidad con Israel y la cesación de los ataques en Gaza.

Aghasaleh, el único miembro del personal académico entre los estudiantes manifestantes, estaba dando una lección sobre los efectos del gas lacrimógeno cuando las fuerzas del orden entraron en el edificio. Fue uno de varios miembros del personal académico arrestados en universidades de todo el país en las últimas semanas mientras apoyaban las protestas estudiantiles.

Activismo de por vida

El activismo ha sido parte de la vida de Aghasaleh durante muchos años, comenzando en la escuela secundaria y continuando en la universidad en su país de origen, Irán. Participó en el movimiento estudiantil de Teherán en 1999 y 2003, abogando por las reformas democráticas y los derechos humanos y de las mujeres. Durante las protestas, el gobierno iraní mató a decenas de manifestantes y arrestó a miles más.

En las Elecciones Presidenciales de Irán de 2009, Aghasaleh dirigió a un grupo de observadores legales que vigilaban por posible fraude electoral. Después de que circulara la evidencia de un fraude electoral, se unió a las manifestaciones en las calles con sus amigos durante varios días. Sin embargo, con el tiempo, sus amigos comenzaron a desaparecer, arrestados por el gobierno.

Demandas estudiantiles

Los estudiantes en Cal Poly Humboldt demandaron la divulgación de las inversiones y colaboraciones de la universidad con Israel, el corte de todos los lazos con las universidades israelíes, la desinversión de las empresas y corporaciones cómplices de la ocupación de Palestina, y la exigencia pública de un cese al fuego. También exigieron la retirada de los cargos contra los organizadores estudiantiles.

Aghasaleh cumplió una suspensión de dos meses, fue despojado de su derecho a estar en el campus y se le prohibió comunicarse con los estudiantes. A pesar de hacer frente a posibles cargos y con su situación laboral incierta, Aghasaleh también está preocupado por su estatus migratorio en los Estados Unidos, ya que su tarjeta verde vence en octubre.
